Functional Features:-

The software must enable you to manage your business inventory in a centralised manner. Good inventory management software is not about a bunch of single modules operating separately. It is about ensuring that all modules are interconnected so that information is available in one centralised place.

A reliable inventory management system will enable you to connect all the various aspects and modules of your business so you can get instant information from a single location. This encourages collaboration and paves the path for effective inventory management so you have the right stock at any time of the day.
